Alaskans have four weeks to apply for FEMA assistance related to losses suffered as a result of Tropical Storm Halong. The deadline to apply with FEMA is Dec. 22. This is also the deadline to apply with the Small Business Administration for a physical damage low-interest loan related to the disaster.

The deadline for the State of Alaska's Individual Assistance program is Jan. 8. Survivors are encouraged to register for both State and FEMA Individual Assistance programs to maximize their recovery efforts.

You may apply with FEMA by calling its dedicated Alaska Call Center at 1-866-342-1699. The Alaska Call Center is open daily 9 a.m.-6:30 p.m. but closed Thursday for Thanksgiving. Yup'ik translators are available to support the Call Center Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday from 1:30-6 p.m., and once a week at different hotels where survivors are staying. You may also register by visiting disasterassistance.gov or by using the FEMA app.

To apply for state Individual Assistance, visit www.ready.alaska.gov/ia, or call 1-844-445-7131.

To apply with the Small Business Administration, visit sba.gov/disaster, contact by email at disastercustomerservice@sba.gov or call 1-800-659-2955 for information.

After you've registered with FEMA, an inspection will verify your damages. Please apply with FEMA even if you have insurance. FEMA assistance cannot duplicate benefits from insurance, state programs or other resources. There may be circumstances, though, where FEMA grant money can help you replace items not covered by insurance.

Working in full partnership with the State of Alaska and local officials, FEMA will continue helping Alaska's individuals and families get back on their feet and jumpstart their recovery.

"Any recovery is a joint effort at local, state and federal levels," said FEMA Federal Coordinating Officer Duke Davis. "We have enjoyed strong coordination with the state and numerous tribal nations. These are partnerships built over many years."
